NeuroAiD is an oral treatment helping victims of strokes "and traumatic brain injuries, who suffer from established deficits" to recover their functional independence in addition to rehabilitation.

"NeuroAiD was historically a Traditional Medicine," listed in Singapore since 2006 as a Proprietary Medicine. It is recommended to improve the recovery of neurological functions partially or fully lost following a stroke or a traumatic brain injury.

NeuroAiD is manufactured following the international standards of Good Manufacturing Practices and has a well-established quality profile. Each batch of NeuroAiD is subjected to stringent quality control and ensuring the safety and quality of the product.

Who should take NeuroAiD?

NeuroAiD is recommended for patients suffering from established deficits after a stroke or a traumatic brain injury, to recover their impaired functions and abilities. NeuroAiD should be initiated once the patients are stabilized in combination to rehabilitation therapies.

Why take NeuroAiD?

NeuroAiD is a recovery stimulator dedicated to repair neurological functions. NeuroAiD creates a favourable environment to enhance the natural ability of the brain to repair itself, called neuroplasticity. With its multiple properties, NeuroAiD is an optimal answer to the complexity of the recovery process. It stimulates the generation of new neural cells and favours the formation of new functional neuronal circuits to repair the damaged areas, which is key for achieving recovery. With the changes happening, the brain materialise into faster and greater improvements of neurological functions and impaired abilities. The neurorestorative properties of NeuroAiD were established in 2010 by a team of French scientists and published in peer-reviewed international journals. Over the years, further scientific research and clinical trials have highlighted its major role in stimulating neurorepair, its safety profile and its long-term benefits in achieving functional recovery.

Testimonials

Mr. Severino's wife was able to start NeuroAiD treatment ten months after suffering from a stroke. Since then, she has had a significant recovery mainly in her strength, stability, as well as her mobility. The testimonial mentions details of her progress after one year of physical therapy and a full course treatment with NeuroAiD
